Revision of copyright law

The law is under review for amendment to make it compliant with the Internet treaties. Circumvention is the only aspect of the Internet Treaties not already covered by the current law. The Library, Archives and Museums group met with the review team of the Intellectual Property Office in March. Among concerns raised were:

1. Exemptions that would not make it an infringement to circumvent digital protection measures to facilitate:

- a. study and research;
 - b. access by the blind and print disabled;
 - c. preservation;
2. No further extension on the present life of creator plus fifty years.
 3. Harmonization with Legal Deposit Act Regulations
 4. Definitions of Fair Dealing
 5. Clarity on the copyright status of government publications including studies and reports.
 6. Treatment of Orphan Works
